REPUBLICANS GO AFTER PHILO CLARK'S SCALP

SAY HE SHUTS DOOR TO FAIR CHANCES IN PARTY COUNCILS

Interview Given By Bannon

That a determined effort will be made at the May primary by Republicans of Scioto county to overthrow Philo Clark and his little gang of henchmen, became apparent Thursday when papers were taken out for numerous commissioners who will oppose Clark if elected, to the last ditch. Incidentally those candidates for Republican nominations, who did not first get the O. K. of Mr. Clark, opened up their campaigns with great vigor. They expect to cover the county thoroughly.

The candidates who are running, as they say, as just plain Republicans, are Thomas C. Patterson, for auditor; N. B. Gilliland, for representative; Philip Hubert for sheriff; J. E. Shump for clerk; A. J. Finney and J. E. Kocher for commissioners, and E. O. McCowen for recorder.

The Clark O. K. ticket consists of Morris Coe for auditor; Harry W. Miller for representative; John Eckhart for sheriff; Roy McElhaney for clerk; Peter Stowe and J. J. Spencer for commissioners and Charles Rice, no one else for recorder.

Clark henchmen were busy on Thursday in calling at his office and securing papers for committees. One man who called was Jos. Folsom, chief deputy of the county board of elections. He got papers for Arthur Goddard for committeeman from Green township, his home.

Thursday afternoon, in response to an inquiry from a Times reporter, former Congressman Henry T. Bannon gave out this strong interview in regard to the approaching contest in the primaries:

"There certainly will be a contest in the May primaries. The Republicans are tired of the ruinous domination of Philo Clark and the dwarfing methods employed by him and it is time for the rank and file to assert themselves and throw off his yoke. I am not appealing to any faction but to that great body of the Republican electorate which believes in equal opportunity for all and the elimination of corrupt methods from the party primary.

"Later I will probably give out a written statement showing in detail the deplorable conditions now confronting the party and directing the attention of Republicans to the urgent necessity of installing the political power of Mr. Clark.

"I am not seeking the elimination of any Republican but I am striving for the overthrow of a vicious system, the same system which two years ago subverted the will of the Republicans of this county and left us without a single district office. It will be a battle of truth against boodle. If successful in the primary no Republican shall suffer the humiliation of discrimination by reason of faction."

Royal Greeting To Roosevelt In Cairo, Carefully Guarded

(By United Press.)

Cairo, Egypt, March 24.—(By United Press Correspondent)—That the British government actually fears for the safety of Colonel Roosevelt, owing to this city being the hot-bed of the Egyptian nationalist movement was demonstrated today by the throngs of policemen that guarded the ex-president from the moment his train arrived at eight o'clock until the Khedive's royal carriage had deposited him at the doors of Shepard's hotel.

Roosevelt's speeches at Khartoum and Assouan in which he pleaded for native cooperation with the British authorities has aroused the resentment of the Nationalists. The colonel himself laughed at the idea of danger, and requested that no special police guards be furnished.

The greeting given Roosevelt here was more like an American welcome than any he has so far encountered.

(By Associated Press.)

Cairo, Egypt, March 24.—The welcome given to Roosevelt on his arrival here surpassed that received by any other foreigner, within the memory of the present generation. The city was bedecked with American flags and an enormous crowd was at the railway station and greeted the former president enthusiastically. This afternoon the state coach called for Roosevelt and conveyed him to the Abdin Palace where he was received by the Khedive of Egypt.

Henry S. Boutell, Illinois, 108 votes.

Packers Now Face Terms In Prison

(By United Press.)

Chicago, March 24.—The "joker" in the government's suit against the National Packing Co., in which all the big packers are individually made defendants has been disclosed. By it there is a possibility that some of the biggest packers will have to fight hard to keep out of prison.

Packers attorneys on examination of the governments petition find that it points out that Federal Judge Grosscup several years ago issued an injunction restraing the packers from operating in combination, and that this injunction has been flagrantly violated.

If the allegations in the bill can be proved citations for contempt against the individual packers will be demanded.

Local Socialists, who have their headquarters in the Harugari hall on Gallia street, are about to close a lease for the building formerly used by the Salvation Army on Findlay street for permanent headquarters. Should the deal be consummated, the building will be renovated from cellar to garret, newly painted and re-papered. The building would give them ample room for the holding of open meetings. It is now the intention of the Socialists to hold the Ries lecture in that building next Monday evening.

Pierce Frederick who is preparing to open a meat market on West Second street, has purchased a horse of Tom Wills.

Answers Filed

Lucia H. Scott and Irene Scott have filed their answer in the case of The Portsmouth Savings and Loan company against the above parties in a suit of foreclosure.

Lucia H. Scott states in her answer that the real estate described in the petition came to her as the widow, and to Irene D. Scott as sole heir-at-law of James H. Scott, who died intestate prior to the execution of the mortgage set forth in the petition; and that the interest of the answering defendant in the said real estate is her dower right therein; that Irene D. Scott is the owner of the remainder in fee in the real estate; that the indebtedness for which the mortgages were given to secure were the sole debts of Lucia H. Scott, and Irene Scott signed and executed the mortgages and pledged her interest in said real estate solely as the surety of Lucia H. Scott.

The defendant consents that the real estate be sold in the action and asks that the value of her dower interest therein be ascertained in money; that the same be applied toward the payment of the claims and demands of the plaintiff and the cost, and that only the balance remaining due to the plaintiff after deducting the value of the dower interest of Lucia H. Scott, be paid from the interest of Irene D. Scott therein, and for all proper and equitable relief.

RUNS OVER A PET DOG

A highly prized French poodle dog belonging to an actress on the bill at the Orpheum was run over and killed by an automobile in front of Warster Bros'. drug store on Chillicothe street Wednesday afternoon. It was thought the dog was struck by a machine that Chief Davidson had pressed into service in making an effort to apprehend a check forger, but eye witnesses to the accident say it was another machine that got in a jam at that point at the time. The chief regretted the occurrence and says it was unavoidable.

The actress was greatly grieved over the loss of her pet.

OPEN TO ALL.

In a private note to the editors, the citizen who wrote the communication on the school bond election, appearing in Wednesday's Times, gave the impression, that there was a belief that because this paper favored the issuance of additional bonds for a high school, it would not care to publish anything in criticism thereof.

This is altogether a mistaken view. As The Times has said heretofore the public schools are the concern of all; all own them and all pay for them. Discussion of their management and needs should always therefore be open and equal. The Times has no disposition to force its views on them to the general disapproval, or disadvantage of the community. It is therefore not only ready and willing to hear the views of others, but it will quite cheerfully give them free all the space they may reasonably desire to put them before that public which it reaches every day.

Its position is that the one essential is that when we build a new high school we should build it right. That is where there has been lamentable failure in this town and county, the erection of such public buildings as are modern and adequate to the importance and needs of the public. Why only three hours ago a farmer was talking to us and hurt our feelings considerably by saying Ironton was far ahead of Portsmouth in public buildings, and we knew what he said is the gospel truth. We are prouder of Portsmouth than anything else on earth. We want to see her for once at least put up a building that will be actually creditable to her and save her the loss of makeshifting for years, or finally going to double expense later on. Just bear this in mind: We are going to annex. That means growth, more pupils for the high school and they have got to be provided for in some way. Why not do it the right way at once and for the first time. It does no good to say somebody blundered in the past and the school ought to be built somewhere else. Everybody makes blunders sometime or other and no matter where the site might be located somebody would say it was the wrong one. So just make the best of that which is at hand and build wisely for the future.

These are our views. If anyone wants to controvert them these columns are open to him.

President Taft told the New York newspaper men that he did not mean all that he said derogatory to the press, at Chicago. Whether the magazines will take this as an ample and sufficient apology remains to be seen.

We still insist the rebuke administered to Cannon is not the cure for an evil system of machine government, no matter how vociferous Republicans are in insisting it is

Ohio and New York are running neck and neck race as to which shall make the greater showing in official graft, Pennsylvania still retains the belt, however.

Fairbanks has improved by travel. He said in New York on his return from Europe that talk of war with Japan is criminal. It may not be so bad as that, but it is bad.

THE SPIRIT BOWED DOWN.

"More in sorrow than in anger it must be confessed that some of the Republican statesmen rattling around in congressional and legislative seats in Washington and Columbus, as well as some of those to whom political managership has been delegated, don't measure up to the standard of Joseph Benson Foraker, Marcus Alonzo Hanna and some of the other political generals of the good old days who made war on the enemy instead of promoting discord and strife within the party ranks."

The above lamentation is from one of our most esteemed Republican contemporaries. It is a wail that finds responsive echo in the hearts of the vast majority of Republicans. It ought, though, to give a bill of particulars. For instance it might say that "the leaders" have been too busy trying to prevent probing graft part of the time and too busy trying to explain away graft the other part of the time to organize anything like a militant host. In fact they have been so busy all the time throwing the party into hot water that they can not set themselves to anything else. But of course, that only shows how unfit they are and how unlike the old leaders. These new ones have no thought above politics and that puts them at a disadvantage in coping with opponents, who believe a public office is a public trust to be administered for the benefit of the people.

JUST A-FOOLIN'!

From every township in this big nation there is going up a wail of disappointment over the appointment of census enumerators. It is too bad, and yet it is comical. It appears that a million or so of persons took the Taft administration to be sincere when it announced with a loud blare, that the census taking would be put under civil service rules and the appointments of enumerators would go to those, who on open competitive examination showed themselves most competent. The appointments are being made and those who were so credulous as to take the examinations, expecting merit and not "a pull" to get them the places are just finding out how woefully they were deceived. The favorites of the bosses and the machines are alone getting those nice certificates and lone merit is getting its pains for its pay. The competitive examinations were farces. The most ludicrous instance of this occurred out in Kansas, where the appointments were announced before the examinations had been passed upon and the findings made therefrom at Washington. It was about the same in most all other districts though the supervisors kept off the announcements until "the physicological moment."

A DANGEROUS VENTURE.

We notice that in letting some of the recent bridge contracts a certain firm, which once upon a time got about all this sort of work in Scioto, was awarded a contract or two upon bids that did not apparently strictly comply with the advertised terms. As near as we are able to judge, the firm submitted some plans of its own and got the award upon a part of them.

If this be true the commissioners are treading on dangerous grounds. Grave scandals have arisen in other counties from boards following a similar course and the danger from such a practice is always imminent. To begin with it is destructive to the vital principle of bidding, which is open and honest competition and the contractor, who figures out the specifications of his own bid is mighty apt to have something up his sleeve that the fellow who pays the bill does not see.

A PLAIN QUESTION.

If citizens will calmly and carefully consider the matter in all its details we do not believe there will be serious opposition to the proposal to issue $65,000 additional bonds for a new high school. The whole matter resolves itself into the question of whether or not we want to erect a building that will be a credit to the city, one that will meet the demands of the future as well as the present.

You all want your boy and your girl to be fitted for the battle of life, in the most complete and thorough manner possible, don't you? Of course you do.

Then why discuss men or money when the future of your children is at stake?

You would not begrudge your last cent if your boy or girl were sick. Then why begin figuring the cost when the expenditure of more money means better fire protection in the new high school; better ventilation in the school rooms; better means of equipping the young man or the young woman?

Study the proposition from whatever angle you will, it always comes back to the boy and the girl, and are you going to vote for them or against them.

The Blade says his constituents will approve the way Adna Romulus voted for the overthrow of Cannon. That is nice, but Adna Romulus did not vote that way until after Cannon was actually overthrown.

Lucasville has shown us the way. She has voted twice for Londs to build a high school and the second time nearly doubled the amount first approved.

The Cleveland Leader takes consolation in the fact that one can put his appendix under the head of cutting expenses.

Dayton gets the convention, but that does not get any votes for the ticket to be nominated there.

Do not forget there are yet Aldrich and Aldrichism in the senate.

Apologies to March are in order.

Now for annexation and expansion

"Why do workingmen strike?" Father interrogates as the human encyclopedia of owl-like wisdom enters for the evening hour's instruction to his parent.

"Why do workingmen work?" Son growls in answer, searching for a match to start his inspirational "dope stick" burning.

"Wouldn't arbitration be a better way to solve labor problems?" continues Father, in a space yearning tone of voice.

"If the workingmen arbitrated they couldn't walk out. The only way those guys can get a vacation is by striking for a raise in pay they know beforehand they can't get," asserts Son.

"It seems to me it would be better to keep on working for a half a loaf," urges Father, "than to quit altogether."

"Why work all the time for half a loaf when you can have all loaf without any work?" is Son's unanswerable answer.

"I hadn't thought of that," says Father, dizzily groping for the point.

"Well, that's the answer, anyway." Son flippantly decides, flicking the ash from his cigarette.

"There seem to be a great many strikes going on now all over the country," comments Father, scanning the big headlines in his paper.

"Sure sign spring has came," retorts Son.

"What makes you think the weather has anything to do with this unsettled condition of labor?" asks Father.

"When the fish begin to bite every good union man feels like striking," explains Son. "That's bylaw No. 1."

Surely all those thousands of men who have stopped working are not quitting merely for fun," Father declares

"Some of them have that tired feeling that even a bottle of Aunt Sally's Sagwa won't cure," says Son. "When the beer signs are put in the windows and the thirst parlors hang up their swing doors, even the most faithful little toilers feel like heating it for the woods. When a guy feels it coming on the boss begins to look like Nero, Simon Legree and a chain gang driver all in one. If he calls you down for soldiering you feel more cut up about it than old Uncle Tom did when Simon handed out the lash. The bookworm hasn't anything on gentle spring when it comes to stirring up hate agains' sordid toil."

WHEN THE FISH BEGIN TO BITE, EVERY GOOD UNION MAN FEELS LIKE STRIKING.

"There should be no disputes between capital and labor except for great principles," Father gravely asserts.

"Every workingman has three great principles, the finest that ever came down the pike," announces Son. "They are so simple that even a boss with a solid ivory thinker ought to be able to see through them."

"Maybe he does," slyly suggests Father. "What are they?"

"More money, less work, shorter hours," replies Son.

"And what does the employer get?" Father wants to know.

"They let him run the business," Son says, "provided he doesn't violate any of the union bylaws. The workingman has to be very careful, you know, Pop, because his only capital is his time."

"The employer, only risking his money," Father hesitatingly remarks, "naturally hasn't anything to lose but that if his venture fails."

"That's all," Son airly agrees. "There never would be any trouble if the bosses came across with the long green. Laboring men don't ask for frills like being carried to work in automobiles, Havana cigars supplied free, reading and music rooms provided and other comforts socialists and others say they ought to have."

"Those things would be very nice if the business could afford it," admits Father. "But what reward does the employer get?"

"If's there's anything left, that's his. Then on Labor Day his name appears in large type on a banner in the parade as the 'Laboring Man's Friend.'"

SIDELIGHTS ALONG WASHINGTON BYWAYS.

Washington, D. C., Thursday, March 24.—Senator Elmer J. Burkett has suddenly discovered that his cigar bill is growing to enormous proportions, and he is in search for an explanation. The Senator is just on the eve of a campaign for re-election to the Senate. Up to date, however, the campaign has been conducted from his offices in Washington and he has not yet put in a stock of campaign smokes.

If the Senator does not know why he is buying more cigars today than he did a month ago some of his friends do and they are enjoying not only the situation but also the cigars. Recently a friend of the Senator dropped into his office for a social talk. He had been there but a few moments when he pulled out a box of cigarettes. The Senator eyed the cigarettes suspiciously.

"Have a cigar, please," he said.

"Oh, I prefer a cigarette," his friend answered.

"This is a very excellent cigar," remarked the Senator, "and I really wish you would try it."

The cigar was accepted. The next time the friend went to Mr. Burkett's office he was again compelled to abandon his cigarette in favor of one of the Senatorial cigars. Suddenly it dawned on him that the statesman from the plains of Nebraska disliked cigarettes intensely and almost to the point of disliking those who use them. He told the story around the Capitol, and now Senator Burkett is being confronted almost hourly by some friend who begins the conversation by offering him a cigarette.

"I don't smoke them," the Senator always says. "Please smoke a cigar with me."

Formerly the Senator found it possible to keep a box of cigars in his office and load up his pockets before going to the Capitol each day. Now the outgo is so large that he has a box in both places. But he has not learned yet why he is getting rid of more cigars than formerly.

The members of the Senate Committee on Rules are in bad favor with the waiters in the Senate restaurant. The committee has charge of the restaurant, and it has been instituting many reforms at this session of Congress. New furniture has been stalled, looking glasses have replaced the smoke black walls, there is a fine assortment of new silver and china, and, taken all in all, the restaurant is one of the most attractive places in the Capitol.

Now, a new order has been put into effect. "Dick" Shaw, who is now boss of the place over which he presided for so many years, summoned his fellow Africans before him a few days ago.

"Boys," said "Dick," "there is a new order out from the chairman, and you must obey it at once."

"What is it, 'Dick?'" asked "See," who knows what to order as soon as he sees a Senator on his way to the restaurant.

"Your mustaches must come off," announced "Dick," gravely.

"Not mine," said "See," pleadingly.

"Yes, yours and all the rest," declared Dick. "Orders is orders."

"Why don't you shave off your own?" Dick was asked.

"I'm boss now, and don't have to."

"This heyah improvement business is being carried too far," declared "See" to one of the Senators who asked about his changed appearance. "They say it ain't sanitary to wear a mustache. We colored fellows never could raise a mustache that amounted to much. I cut mine off, and what do I look like? I look liga a babboon, that's what I look like. Why don't they make the Senators cut them off. In off hours we hear a lot of talk upstairs about equal rights to all and special privileges to none, but I don't guess that doctrine applies to mustaches."

A bottle thrown overboard from Mr. Peary's Arctic ship Roosevelt off Greenland on September 2, 1909, was picked up off Kinsale, Ireland, today. Notice that a lot of things are coming home to roost.

A Rumor Started By Malicious Persons Vigorously Denied By Si Strauss

It has come to my notice that some one, wishing to injure my established business in Portsmouth, has started a rumor and given it as wide circulation as possible, that I am about to dispose of my business interests in Portsmouth and leave the city. Nothing is further from my mind and I wish to stamp this story as absolutely untrue.

Perhaps, it would please some if I would pull up stakes and go, but no matter how large our interests are elsewhere, I will always be a resident of the Peerless City. As long as life lasts the combination will always be fought to a finish with the same weapon that has been used in the past, high grade goods priced low, the way that has brought success to The Salvage. That is what will bring new laurels to us and help you in the struggle against monopoly.

I have just closed a three year lease for the adjoining building and on or about April 1st, will occupy it with our enlarged shoe department, giving us much needed additional floor space. Does this look like I intended to leave? No, dear friends, I am with you from now on until life's finish, all for the good, honor and glory of Portsmouth.

Yours very sincerely,
SI. STRAUS.

New Turban Effects For Spring Coiffures

Is it not possible to find a coiffure, fashionable, but with a touch of personality? Yes! If any one takes the trouble to study the shape of one's head and get the advice of a practical hairdresser.

For instance, the illustration (No. 1) of a "calot," or cap; it is made with the help of the chignon roll; every one will notice how soft it looks. A switch might be swirled round, or the lady's own hair; in this case one's hair is tied and divided in two. The left part is turned round to the right and the right to the left, so the hair-tie is hidden by the crossing.

How different it looks compared to the "Noix de Coco" effect obtained with the calot, and it is just as easy to arrange, as the chignon roll is made of long, natural, fluffy, wavy hair. One might alter the outline and arrange it in more than twelve new head-dresses.

If put slightly on the slant (illustration 2) the effect is charming and gives to the coiffure that "Driant artistic silhouette."

No. 3 model shows one the many ways the fringe of a transformation can be arranged; the whole transformation does not weigh more than one ounce and the wave lasts.

Coiffure No. 4 shows the chignon roll under a new aspect; it is divided in two, and one big roll, a kind of soft puff, is made with each part. By putting it a little higher or lower the right angle is easily seen; a twist or a plait is put around the head, the encircling effect being broken by two shell pins.

Model No. 5 is not like the others, although the same chignon roll is used. To execute this coiffure, which is so extremely pretty and becoming, divide the chignon roll in two, back comb underneath and twist each part one on the other, then put it across the head at a proper angle, which can easily be ascertained by looking at the profile. The lady's own hair, or a switch, is put round, but instead of twisting it is left flat on the head and open on the top; this gives an exceedingly good shape, and the ensemble is more Grecian, which is the fashion, says The Queen.

Let it come slowly to a boil, then cook from an hour and a half to two hours, until tender. Serve in a deep hot dish.

Broiled Fresh Herring With Mustard Sauce.

Cut off the heads of the fish, but do not open. Dip in olive oil seasoned with salt and pepper and leave for an hour. Arrange on a buttered gridiron and broil over a clear, slow fire for about fifteen minutes, turning frequently.

Mix together a tablespoonful mustard, a teaspoonful flour and cold water to moisten. When smooth pour on a cupful white stock and stir over the fire until boiled and thickened. Add a tablespoonful butter, a teaspoonful minced parsley, and salt and pepper to taste. Put the herrings on a hot platter and pour the hot sauce over them.

Fish Steaks Au Gratin.

For this steaks of halibut, cod or any firm, white fleshed fish may be used. Cut about three inches square and an inch thick.

Butter a small dripping pan, and having salted and peppered the squares of fish on both sides, lay them in the pan. Sprinkle with a few drops onions juice, a little minced parsley and some buttered crumbs. Squeeze over them the juice of a lemon and bake about twenty minutes, covered the first ten. Serve plain or with a cream sauce.

Creamed Yarmouth Bloaters.

Remove head, tail and fins. Split in half all the way through, put into a saucepan full of cold water and cook just five minutes after the water comes to a boil. Lift out carefully and most of the bones will come to the surface so that they can be readily picked out. Have ready a hot sauce prepared as follows:—Melt in a saucepan a tablespoonful butter, add a tablespoonful flour, as soon as melted and bubbly pour in, little by little, a cupful rich milk and cream. As soon as thickened, remove and pour over the fish on a hot platter.

NOTES ABOUT BOOKS.

In "The Beauty," just published by Bobbs-Merrill, the author, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, makes her heroine conclude the story with these words addressed to the hero:—

"When you talked to me of the big, wonderful things, when you made me feel that I was an intelligent human being and not merely a pretty woman, why, my whole heart went out to you and I knew it was you, you alone that I loved."

"The Isle of Whispers," by E. Lawrence Dudley, published by Henry Holt & Co., is a highly picturesque tale of the New England seas which was suggested to the author through tales of a mysterious "No man's Land," off Nantucket.

In "The Day of Souls," by Charles Tenney Jackson, just issued by Bobbs-Merrill Company, the author depicts the story of the triumph of a man's better nature. This is a vigorous work of fiction, notable for its solid grasp of the facts of actual life.

How To Make Better Cough Syrup Than You Can Buy

A full pint of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time—can be made by the recipe given below in five minutes, for only 54 cents. Simple as it is, there is nothing better at any price. It usually stops a deep-seated cough in twenty-four hours, and is a splendid household remedy for whooping cough, colds, hoarseness, bronchitis, etc.

Take a pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint warm water and stir about 2 minutes. Put 2½ oz. Pinex in a pint bottle and fill up with syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. It keeps perfectly and the taste is pleasing.

The chemical elements of pine which are very healing to membranes, are obtained in high proportion in Pinex, the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway White Pine Extract. None of the weaker pine preparations will work with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or can easily get it for you.

Strained honey can be used instead of the syrup, and makes a very fine honey and pine tar cough syrup.

TELEGRAPHERS NOW CONSIDER A STRIKE

Roanoke, Va., Mar. 24.—The special committee of the Order of Railway Telegraphers of the Norfolk & Western system, which went to Washington a few days ago in the interest of the order and to further plan for the settlement of grievances with the railway company, has returned to Roanoke.

There seems to be no likelihood of an adjustment being in sight, and the question of a strike of the railroad telegraphers has been put up to the national order.

It was learned today that Mr. J. A. Newman, the first vice president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, will arrive in the city within the next day or so to thoroughly investigate the differences.

A gentleman high in the confidence of the telegraphers stated to a reporter that he felt pretty sure that the differences would be adjusted without resorting to a genuine strike. It is understood that there is not such a wide gulf between the railroad officials and the general committee, but that the matter can be finally and fully adjusted by arbitration.

This will, however, depend largely on the recommendation of Vice President Newman, and it can be depended upon that he will recommend extreme measures only as a last resort.

Concerning the situation, the Bluefield Telegraph has this to say: "From a report received here yesterday it was learned that National President Perryman, of the O. R. T., is expected to arrive in Bluefield from Washington in the course of a few days and at that time will take up the matter of the differences between the Norfolk & Western and the members of the O. R. T. It is believed that he will be able to effect an amicable agreement with which all parties will be satisfied. At the present time the president of the railway telegraphers is in Washington, where he was called from St. Louis to assist the government on some important department matters. Up to this time no agreement has been reached, but an agreement is arrived at the Daily Telegraph is able to state on good authority that a strike vote will be called for and the final result will be left to the men themselves. It is to be hoped that such proceeding will be avoided as it is felt to very likely to bring other troubles, as only the engineers and firemen have been dealt with up to this time. The Norfolk & Western may feel that the men are asking too much but it would be regretted to have such an excellent organization as the road has torn to pieces by a strike. It is known that up to this time the operators are backing the general committee and the committee is composed of men who are not radical by any means.

Order Of Owls To Have Local Branch

Hoo! Hoo! Hoo! Look out for the Owls, they are surely coming!

Portsmouth may have another fraternal order in the near future. The Order of Owls is going to build a nest in the Peerless soon. Mr. George J. Roth of South Bend, Ind., deputy supreme organizer of the Order, is now in Portsmouth working up a membership. He says Portsmouth looks good to him and that he thinks it will be but a short time until he will have a large class ready for the instituting of the order. The Chillicothe nest which has a membership of about 500 will put on the work here when the class is organized.

The Order of Owls is a new order, having been instituted in November, 1904, but its popularity has won for it a phenomenal growth. They are established in all parts of the world, even to Alaska, South Afrisa, Australia, New Zealand and Mexico.

The Order of Owls is a benevolent organization, paying sick, accident, disability and death benefits.

An idea of the purpose of the order can be obtained by reading its motto here given in rhyme:

There's so much bad in the best of us,
And so much good in the worst of us,
It hardly behooves any of us
To speak ill of the rest of us.

There are now 110 nests in Ohio and new ones are being organized every month. Wheeling, W. Va., has a nest with over 1500 members.

Fastest Train On C. & O. Railway

"They talk about fast trains," said a veteran engineer of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad yesterday, "the fastest train on this division is not one of the F. F. V. expresses nor yet the Hawley 'Flyer,'" says the Huntington Advertiser. "The fastest train that operates on the Chesapeake & Ohio, at least on this division is No. 6, the easthound express train that arrives here at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

"This train runs the distance from Huntington to Hinton, 150 miles, in six hours and fifteen minutes. Between the two points she makes thirty-eight stops, laying at Charleston twelve minutes and at Montgomery and Thurmond almost as long.

"To make up for the time lost by stopping and starting the train makes great time between stations, always fifty miles an hour and sometimes a mile a minute."

This is a surprise to many people who are unacquainted with the inwardness of railroad life. Most folks think that the F. F. V. trains are the fastest on the road, but according to this old engineman, No. 6 runs faster than they do. The "flyers" make much better time, at that as they run at an average of 50 miles an hour between the larger stations without stopping at the smaller places.

Bills Passed By the Senate And House

Columbus, O., Mar. 24.—The senate reconsidered the vote by which the Lawyer bill, making the terms of county officers four years, was defeated, and then passed the measure. It does not affect the tenure of present officers. The bill now goes to the house. The sheriff and treasurer are exempted."

The house reconsidered the Eubanks bill, which was beaten Tuesday, and passed it Wednesday afternoon. It provides that school board members shall be paid for their services as in the case of councilmen.

The house passed the Geswelier bill, to make patients of means confined in the state hospitals, pay the state for their treatment and keep.

The house passed the new mining code and it will become a law when signed by the governor. It gives the state its first code of mining laws and places needed safeguards about mining.

After much debate the senate passed the bill of Senator Tod, of Mahoning, making bribery of persons in positions of public trust a penitentiary offense. There were but six votes against the bill. Now guilty persons may be let off with $500 fine, but the Tod bill provides that in addition to such a fine a penitentiary sentence of from one to twenty years shall be imposed.

The senate adopted the Marker resolution protesting against the discourtesy of the house in refusing to return the senate resolution to publish a large batch of Howe's Histories and requesting a conference committee to patch up existing troubles.

GET NEW MEN TO REPLACE STRIKERS

Huntington, W. Va., March 24.—The day has brought about no apparent change in the strike situation at the steel car shop at the American Car & Foundry company. The agents of the company who have been out in search of men to take place of those who refused to work because of the reduction of the piece work scale have, it is said, been very successful and a number of new men will be put to work.

So far all of the men who left the shop are holding out persistently for their demands, with no sign of a break in the ranks. Many of them declare that rather than accept the reduction they will seek employment elsewhere.

So far the dissatisfaction has not spread to any other department of the plant and there seems to be no probability that it will. There is no union organization at the plant and this, of course, cripples the effectiveness of the walkout of the steel car builders.

Are Off Duty Temporarily

CHECK FORGER MADE ESCAPE WEDNESDAY

Everything but the man himself was gotten by the police Wednesday night when they took possession of a suit case found to be the property of Virgil Reeves, alleged check forger, who has numbered many victims here within the past few days.

The suit case contained Reeves' working clothes, all of his papers and letters, check books and everything the police desired to use against him in his capture, which is bound to follow sooner or later.

The suit case was found in Reeves' room at the Hotel Portsmouth, and its contents convinced the officials that the man, who was a former C. & O. employe at Huntington, had been writing and passing worthless checks, not only here, but also in Ironton, Jackson, Wellston and other cities. He had quit his railroad job and left Huntington after beating his wife, Cora Reeves, for which he was fined over $14. She intercepted some correspondence between him and Edna Montgomery, a Wellston woman.

Police had about concluded Reeves, who has several aliases, had made a successful get-away Monday and so were greatly surprised when reports reached headquarters Wednesday afternoon that he had been again seen in the West End.

A clerk of one of his victims caught sight of him at Clay Wade's soft drink parlor playing cards. Reeves who had been playing cards there nearly all day leaped to his feet and bolted out a rear entrance. It was necessary for him to crawl through a dark and narrow aperture in order to reach the alley.

Chief Davidson and Officer Stokely were on the scene in 15 minutes, having secured an automobile. They had previously hunted for the man in the East End, he having visited several soft drink parlors there and made inquiries about a former saloon man, now said to be located at Huntington.

Reeves must have succeeded in reaching the Kentucky side. About 5 o'clock he called up the Hotel Portsmouth and requested that his suit case be sent to him at Fullerton and he would send the three dollars he still owed for board. Shortly afterward he telephoned again saying it was not necessary to send the suit case as he himself would probably call around for it. The police feeling that the man would try to recover the suit case in some manner, had men stationed in plain clothes about the hotel and also at Fullerton, where it was thought Reeves would try to board an eastbound passenger train. He depot job and boarded at Richter's must have gotten wind of the fact that he was being closely watched for he failed to show up at either place. All surrounding cities have been notified and his arrest should be accomplished ere long.

Reeves is surely more lucky than clever, for he failed to cover up anything and the police have the goods on him should he fall into their hands. He used a Central National bank check book exclusively and the stubs show he must have passed many, of which the police have as yet received no report.

His victims include Grocers Charles Harter, William Werner, Ed Spangler and Preston Sheppard. When the fellow dropped into Harter's grocery at Eighth and Court streets early Saturday evening a girl waited upon him. He wanted a pack of potatoes and a candy pail. He tendered the check and the girl called to Mr. Harter, who was out in the stable at the rear. The stranger picked up the check and walked out to where Mr. Harter was working. He told of his purchases and that his check was all the money he had. He would like to have the pail and potatoes delivered to his home near Eleventh and Gay streets. The fellow's whole manner and talk impressed Charley that he was a local working man and so he cashed the check which was for $5. Shortly afterward he took the pail and potatoes to deliver them, but upon reaching that neighborhood was unable to find anyone who had ordered anything of the kind. He took the bucket and potatoes back to his store expecting the man to call up later after finding they had not been delivered. Walter Finney entered the store later on and Charley, who, up to this time, had still believed the check was good, tendered same to Walter in payment of a bill. It was not until Monday, when Mr. Finney called him up, that Charley learned the check was worthless.

Grocer Werner was worked by the same fellow for $9 Saturday evening. He was in working clothes and asked for a plug of tobacco. The check to all appearances was good, and Mr. Werner, after finding he had been duped, was reluctant about telling anyone.

Eddie Spangler is not in the habit of cashing checks for any save friends, but it so happened he was just counting up some cash when a man entered his Market street store Monday. He recognized him as the same who had been coming into the store for several days buying tobacco. He told Ed he was working on the new B. & O. S. W. and would be in town for several days. Ed cashed a $5.50 check to accommodate him. One of smaller amount was cashed for him at Sheppard's grocery, where he also purchased tobacco.

The man had first engaged accommodations at the Hotel St. John, but some conflicting statements made by him and the discovery that he was not working anywhere, and besides his fault-finding manner made him an undesirable guest and he was refused further accommodations. He had registered there as Harry Rowe, of Huntington. At the Hotel Portsmouth he registered as Virgil Reive, of East Monroe, O. He had been receiving mail addressed to Virgil Reeves, care general delivery. Police noticed the man playing cards at the Senate a few nights ago, but up to that time they had not received any complaints about him.

A Complaint About Market Conditions

People are complaining to city officials about a growing practice that they say has made the weekly markets in Government Square worthless.

Farmers bringing produce into the city it is said, are solicited by dealers who buy up almost their entire supply and by the time market begins they have very little left.

For example it is said that on Thursday morning there were no live chickens to be had on market for love or money. All had been sold to dealers at 15 cents and they in turn were selling them at 22 cents on foot or at a 7 cent profit. The same is true of butter, which has become a mighty scarce article on market.

The officials will try to devise some means of relieving the existing conditions, but it is hard to see how they can act.

May Move C. & O. Ticket Office

It is more than likely that the C. & O. ticket office at Fullerton will be moved into the new building being built by E. E. Fullerton, and that Morton & Taylor will put a restaurant in the room now occupied by the office.

Like Mad Bear At Bay Was Hy Davis On Stand In State Graft Cases

Columbus, O., March 24.—Full of fight, belligerent as a bear at bay, Hy D. Davis when on the stand in the state graft probe, Wednesday, was frequently uncontrollable.

John T. Paine, he denounced as "a scoundrel who ought to be in the penitentiary," and State Treasurer Creamer Creamer as "a traducer of character."

The governor, he said, was "playing politics" in ordering the Ruggles-Gale company transactions with the fire marshal's office only taken up at this time.

Miss Platt, a former bookkeeper for the Ruggles-Gale company, had testified that when she made a statement of the payment of commissions by the Ruggles-Gale company, the governor instructed her to eliminate all reference to such graft with county officers.

"He was afraid he would strike a Democratic official if that was done," shouted Davis.

"I'm not excited," replied Davis.

"Then let us hope that you never will be, Mr. Davis," mildly interposed Mr. Booth.

At the opening of the session Mr. Davis requested that John T. Paine and Judge Gale be called as witnesses. It was explained that Mr. Paine was in Michigan and could not be forced to attend. As for calling Judge Gale, the committee put its foot down hard against that. There was to be no more granting of immunity by the committee, Representative Riddle said.

Mr. Davis said that Mr. Ball was dead and his family was hurt by the publications reflecting his honor. When he took him into the office, Mr. Ball had as good a reputation as any man in town. It was not right, he said, to keep the face that Mr. Ball was under charges from him, when two years ago Mr. Creamer must have known what the Ruggles-Gales books showed. If that had been made known then, some one would have been in the penitentiary now.

"I would have filed affidavits against Paine, Ruggles and the whole of them," shouted Mr. Davis.

"It is not too late yet," suggested Mr. Booth.

At this juncture Representative Riddle suggested to the witness that he cut out oratory and confine himself to plain statements of facts.

Mr. Davis' attention was called to the fact that he had ordered in his less than two years in the office, 116,000 fire report blanks.

"How many fires occur annually in the state on the average?" he was asked.

He said that there were about 5000.

Mr. Booth showed him that he had ordered at one time 60,000 blanks.

"That was because we found that we could get that many about as cheap as a smaller number."

Mr. Booth asked him if that 60,000 was not enough for about 12 years.

"They are all used up long ago," replied Mr. Davis.

This gave Mr. Booth an opening for questioning whether that number of blanks were ever delivered. He declared that such a number as 116,000 would make a pile about 40 feet high and the matter of storing them would be a problem.

Mr. Davis became furious at the intimation that this might have been a padded bill, and while he admitted that he could not testify of his personal knowledge, he was not going to assume until some better evidence than had been submitted came that any of his employes were dishonest.

A new firm of architects has just been established to take over the offices of A. R. Alger & Son in the Turley building April 1.

The firm will be known as Devoss & Wilson and will be prepared to all kinds of work in their line. Arthur Devoss is the well known rising young architect who prepared the plans for and is supervising the construction of the new Hill Top engine house. This structure is now almost ready for the roof and when completed will be a thing of beauty. Mr. Devoss has planned other buildings in this and other cities that have brought his work to the favorable notice of the public. J. D. Wilson too is a Portsmouth man who has won a reputation as a good draughtsman and for some years past has been located in Columbus, where he had much experience as an architect.

GREAT CROWD WITNESSED BAPTISM

E. J. Meacham, who is conducting a revival meeting at Sciotoville, went to that village Wednesday afternoon and baptized 11 people in the Ohio river.

A great throng of people witnessed the ordinance. The meeting continues through this week with preaching each evening at 7 o'clock. Tonight a company of 50 members of the First Christian church here will go out to Sciotoville to attend the evening service. They have chartered a car which will leave Market street at 6:30 and will run all the way through to Sciotoville. Usual stops will be made. The choir and male quartette will be in the company and will sing at the church. Great audiences attend these meetings and already 19 have been added to the church.

Company K Inspected

If present plans go through Company K is going to become one of the crack military organizations of the state. For some time a quiet but effective reorganization has been carried on, and now that the enterprise is fairly under way, the plans for bettering the company have been made public.

While discipline is already good, even stricter discipline is to be insisted upon. The present senior officer of Company K, Captain Cliff Brown is a good disciplinarian and it is owing almost entirely to his unceasing efforts in this direction that the standard of Co. K has been going higher all the time.

Next "undesirable citizens" will not be admitted to the company. Only men of good social standing, and of good character will be allowed to enlist. Especially great effort will be made to enlist men who will strengthen the standing of the company. "Weed out two who are not strong in this respect to get one who is," is the slogan.

The Co. K inspection Wednesday night was gone through with great precision, and the inspecting officer, First Lieutenant Lynch of the Sixth Ohio, was very much pleased. Lieut. Lynch was accompanied by Captain Bisk of the regular army.

From here the inspecting officer goes to Manchester.

Shoot Dogs To End Misery

Over a half dozen fine dogs that had been fed poison were shot by police Wednesday afternoon to end their misery. Chief Davidson, upon investigation, found that a well dressed young man had visited a West End drug stores to buy poison tablets, but had been turned down. None of the store owners knew him, but the police will keep a sharp lookout for a person answering the description.

Shanty Boat Was Stolen

Police received a message from the Sterling Rock Iron company Tuesday, asking them to keep a lookout for a shanty boat belonging to one John Kelly. The boat is 16 feet long and was stolen at Hangman's Wednesday night. It is said to be answering the description of a boat seen early in the morning.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE DOG QUESTION

"Cave Canem"—the other side of the dog question.

Mr. Editor, Times—A few days ago I noticed in your journal an item regarding the "dog poisoner" operating in the "East End." As a general thing there are many and various of him and he finds it necessary to administer the quieting dope not only in the East End but in other parts of this thriving bailiwick and for reasons, as per the following:

Fancy to yourself an invalid just out with his cane, on his first trip after a long and terrible siege of sickness, weak and trembling, can hardly tell if he can make his way home from deadly weakness. A burly citizen, who evidently at some time has "heard something," roughly accosts our invalid with "that dog of mine keeps you from sleeping likely?"

Invalid hesitatingly replies, "N-No—not lately, I am doin' better than I did awhile back."

And as he tremblingly wends his way home he hears behind him threateningly: "Better not do anything to my dog if you know when yer safe."

Invalid arrives home and recounts same to wife, who is naturally indignant. Now if the owner of the worthless, noisy cur could realize how many times the sick man had taken trional, veronal, bromidia, etc., by the physician's orders, to get a few hours sleep after lying perhaps 48 to 70 hours enduring the horrors of insomnia, if he could feel the peculiar, destructive nerve-chill that takes place in a sick person's frame when the damnable, persistent noise of an all-night barker succeeds in destroying the effects of the doctor's sedative drug and the nerve symptoms are wilder, fiercer than before and the sick one realizes with despair, "I can't sleep—I can't. I must lie here helpless, even the good doctor can't help me!"

About that time the good sympathetic wife and the hired girl gets their heads together and the domestic assures her that she has a cousin Michael that's a dandy on producing silence in a dog-bedevilled locality. They consult with Mike (or Me) or several other worthies who esteem a human being as a d—n sight better than any selfish person's old dog and out goes dog. Lovely silence for maybap a week, then the party gets a bigger and uglier dog. Then he takes some very odd spells indeed, difficult to diagnose and harder to cure, as they recur persistently and result in vigor mortis, and then again "golden silence."

The above case is quoted from life and most physicians can corroborate it and inform you of only too many like it. All doctors are aware of the nerve-wrecking effect of having to listen to a steady, ever recurring noise.

"Noise as a disease producing factor" has been written on and lectured ten times innumerable. Many landlords in Portsmouth have compelled tenants to move on account of the dog, some times plainly stating why and some times not. But no one has the right to inflict the harassing racket of a howling, yelping cur on his neighbors. "Love thy neighbor as thy self," and better than your dog.

Now, the "dog news" doesn't always read just the same at all times. Some times it says: "Mayor S. has ordered the 'gens d' armes' and the dog catcher to thin out the worthless curs," &c., &c. Then again you'll quote a "Model City" like Holden Minnes, where they are free from the pestiferous nuisance, &c. Truly "consistency thou art a jewel," but the game will go on and the best man will eventually win and certes it must be the one who prefers golden silence to an infernal yapping feist. The materials are cheap, easily used and should be. More anon.

WHY SPRING COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

If Neglected They Lead to Serious, Perhaps Fatal Results.

If you get cold at this time of the year and try to "let it wear off," it frequently develops into a stubborn lung trouble which may in turn become chronic asthma, bronchitis or consumption. It is important to remember that Father John's Medicine cures colds because of its nourishing body-building elements which give strength to the system and enable each organ to resume its normal functions. Father John's Medicine is not a patent medicine, contains no injurious drugs, but is a pure food medicine for those who are weak and run down.

Hear About The Fountains

BELCHER IS A CAND:DATE

Columbus, O., Mar. 22.—Charles E. Belcher, a prominent Columbus attorney, with offices in the Ruggery building, will probably be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

Mr. Belcher has been urged by friends to announce his candidacy and has about decided to do so. Tuesday he said: "While I have not fully decided in regard to the matter it is my expectation to be a candidate for the office, and this is because of the assurances I have received from friends of their support."

Mr. Belcher has been in Columbus for a number of years and is prominent in both the law and Democratic politics. Before coming here he lived in Ironton, where he filled several important offices.

It is expected that the Lawrence county Democratic convention which is to meet within a short time, will indorse him for the nomination.

Chase Rabbit On Ninth St.

An unusual sight was witnessed on East Ninth street Thursday evening at about half past seven. A wild rabbit came running down the car tracks towards Chillicothe street, and it was soon at top speed, too. A large crowd of men and dogs gave chase to it, but as it easily swerved and passed a street car on the way down it soon outdistanced its pursuers and disappeared from view.

A Veteran Editor Here For A Visit

John T. Hamlett of Roanoke, Va., is here on a visit to his son Harry Hamlett, a popular N. & W. freight conductor who is laid up at his home, 1303 Center street with a severe attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Hamlett is a native Virginian and is a veteran newspaper man, having been the proprietor and publisher of the Wytheville, (Va.) Enterprise for a number of years. He retired a few years ago and now resides on a fine farm near Roanoke. He was a major in the Confederate army and took part in many important battles of the civil war and carries scars of clashing with the Yankees. He is a very pleasant gentleman. His son is now on the mend and he will remain here until he has fully recovered.

Letter Of St. Clair

Capt. Nelson W. Evans has in his possession a letter written by Governor St. Clair, bearing the date of October 1, 1808. The letter was written by the distinguished general from Pittsburg, Pa., to his son, Daniel St. Clair, and while the parchment is yellow with age, nevertheless the writing is perfectly legible. Capt. Evans is also in receipt of a book written by Ohio's first governor, in which he defends the assault upon his good name, made by people who criticised his generalship in several battles with the Indians. The book and letter were sent to Capt. Evans from Montgomery county, in Pennsylvania, and are highly agreeable to his historical mind.

GOES BACK TO AUSTRIA

John Muproleus, the Austrian, who was so severely burned at the Portsmouth Steel Co. two months ago, has almost fully recovered and he left Thursday morning for his far away native land. He seems to think that life in the United States is a little too strenuous and upon his arrival in Austria expects to settle down to a less exciting life than that of a steel worker.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR

It Is Easy to Get and Keep.

When a fifty-cent bottle of Parisian Sage will put life, lustre and brilliancy into any woman's hair, why should any woman have repulsive or characterless hair, unless she wants to.

Parisian Sage is the ideal hair dressing of the times, not only does it make woman's hair beautiful, but it is guaranteed by Wurster Bros. to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

If you are troubled with disgusting dandruff, get rid of it as soon as you can. Dandruff is caused by a dandruff germ, and sooner or later will cause baldness.

Parisian Sage kills the germ that cause dandruff, and kills them promptly. It is a daintily perfumed tonic, free from grease and stickiness. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Price 50 cents at druggists everywhere and at Wurster Bros.

Mr. Fee Is At Home

William R. Fee, general manager of the Portsmouth Home Telephone Co., returned Wednesday evening from Columbus, where he attended a meeting of the directors of the Ohio State Telephone Association. He stated that the directors unanimously passed a resolution protesting against the Elson bill, which is now up for passage in the legislature and which the directors claim would tend to create a telephone monopoly. It is generally conceded that the Elson bill was drafted at the behest of the J. P. Morgan interests.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down while enduring a more severe strain for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c at The Fisher & Streich Pharmacy.

Seiling Is Settling Up Big Claim

The claim of $2405.00 preferred by L. H. Sieling against the L. H. Sieling Co., bankrupts, was heard before Referee Mark A. Crawford Thursday afternoon. Mr. Sieling sets forth that the claim is one for money which he advanced to the company out of his own pocket, before the concern went on the rocks. Mr. Sieling hopes to have the claim put in the preferred list, but the trustee has ruled that the claim shall have no standing at all against the estate. Hence the hearing before the referee.

Ed's New Badge.

Ed Phillips of the Seventh street fire department is sporting a fine steamer emblem pin on the lapel of his coat, a gift from Captain Mohr. Phillips is as proud of it as a boy is of his first trousers and scarcely takes his eyes off it.

Mrs. John B. Mohr and daughter of Hamilton, O., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Heinisch.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING

has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

For sale and recommended by Fisher & Streich Pharmacy.

Crowd Gathers To Hear Negro Case

An immense crowd gathered 'round the police station Thursday to hear the Gutherie-Underwood case. The charge of disorderly conduct was dismissed and a charge of meeting with and conversing with a prostitute on the street was lodged against Underwood.

Attorney Daehler, for the defendant, insisted on a jury trial and the work of getting a jury was begun, a number of business men were picked up for service, which caused Attorney Daehler to draw out of the case and Cecil Miller took his place.

Attorney Will Sprague represented the city in the absence of Solicitor Horace Small, who is detained at home by illness.

Bessie Hackworth, the central figure in the case, was brought in by the patrol and did not seem to mind at all the attention she drew.

Underwood then pleaded guilty to the charge and was given the limit $50 and costs which his relatives and friends are making efforts to pay on account of certain phases of the case. Mayor Searcy did not impose any workhouse sentence. He will probably suspend the imprisonment part of Cliff Peters' sentence.

Dr. Chas. Warrener Died On Thursday

Dr. Charles M. Warrener, widely known throughout Southern Ohio as a successful veterinary surgeon, and one of Portsmouth's best citizens, passed away at his home on West Second street Wednesday night, of uremic poisoning.

The final summons came after weeks' of suffering Dr. Warrener taking down the latter part of January. He remained conscious up to within a few minutes before the end came. A sister, Miss Mattie M. Warrener, of London, England, who had come to this country last year to keep house for him and who had faithfully attended him during his long illness and his only son, Dr. Arthur Warrener, who returned from El Paso, Texas to look after his father's practice were at the bedside when he breathed his last.

Dr. Warrener was 60 years of age and born in London. He attended schools in that city and Glasgow and came to America at the age of 22, locating at Amesville, Athens county. He moved to Gallipolis in 1889 dealing in horses for some time until he got well acquainted when he took up the profession of a veterinary. He moved to Portsmouth in 1899 and had lived here ever since. He was married in 1873 to Pharaby Beasley, who preceded him in death, six years ago. Children born to them were Mrs. O. W. Lasley, of Everitt, Wash., Mrs. W. M. Merriman of Gallipolis and Dr. Arthur. Brothers and sisters surviving are Rev. W. J. Warrener, a minister and newspaper editor of Athens, Samuel of Australia, John of London, Eng. Mrs. Jennie Millwood of London, Miss Mattie of this city and Walter of South Africa, who is now en route to this county to visit his sister and brother hoping to find the latter still alive.

Dr. Warrener was a member of the Masonic order, a kind hearted and conscientious man liked and respected by all who knew him. The remains will be taken to the former home at Gallipolis Saturday and the funeral services will be held there Sunday morning.

Aged Farmer Passes Away

John Lewis, a pioneer citizen of Scioto county, and well-to-do farmer residing at Turkey Foot, near Chaffin's Mills, died at 5 o'clock Thursday morning, having attained the ripe old age of 79 years. He had been sick since last fall and his death was due to enlargement of the heart.

He was a fine gentleman, honorable and upright and possessed many splendid traits and by his death the family loses a loving and kind husband and father and the county a most substantial citizen. He was known by all the people for miles around, he having been born and has since resided in the community that he died. His demise is sincerely regretted.

Mr. Lewis survived by his aged wife and four sons: William, of Dogwood Ridge; Thomas, of Dogwood Ridge; John, Jr., of Portsmouth, and Frank, of Turkey Foot.

The funeral will be held from the home Friday with interement at Vernon cemetery.

BREWER WAS GIVEN FINE

Zanesville, O., Mar. 24.—Simeon Linser, Sr., proprietor of Linser Brewing company, was fined $840 in Mayor Campbell's court at New Concord for violating the Rose law. Linser gave his check for the amount.

JULIA MOORE ORDERED IN

Mrs. Julia Moore, the East End woman who has been the source of much trouble to her neighbors was again on the war path Thursday and was ordered in. The woman, it seems, has a mania for tongue lashing and assailing her neighbors who have frequently complained to the officers. She was ordered in once before but did not show up and she was not bothered. However, if she fails to put in her appearance Friday, the patrol will be sent for her.

Married At Greenup, Ky.

It has just come to light that Miss Gachel Slatzer and David McDowell, both employed at the Portsmouth Shoe Co., slipped quietly off to Greenup, Ky., last Tuesday morning and were married. The bride is a daughter of Lottie Slatzer. For the present, the young couple will board, going to house keeping later.

Lewis Corson Resumes Job

Lew. Corson, who was painfully injured some time ago, has sufficiently recovered as to be able to resume his duties of night superintendent of the Harrison-Walker Co., in the East End.

Will and Sant Nichols, who just finished a workhouse sentence for cutting timber, have sold their Pond Run lands to Simon Labold and re moving to Mundy's Run.

Another Dog Is Poisoned

Another dog has been added to the list of canines which have recently suffered death from poisoning in the East End Wednesday night the $150 St. Bernard dog belonging to Mrs. Myrtle Seth, died from strychnine poisoning. Indignation is at white heat in the East End, and it will go hard with the guilty party if he is found.

"THAT "YAMA GIRL" IS WONDERFUL AND THE THREE TWINS IS THE BULLIEST SHOW I'VE SEEN"—NELL BRINKLEY

Mary had—a li—tle lamb—
She took it on—the "L,"
And when they got—up to—the Bronx
That lamb was black—as Hi-e—

SHE stands close above the yellow flare of the footlights, and jams her great stiff white butterfly tie close under her chin, her brows drawn into high pseudism. Her Pierrot bloomers balloon from neck to ankles and wrists. Three startling, foolish big pom-poms of white climb down the tummy of the Pierrot; two more fluff at the knees of her snub-nosed little white pumps, and another hangs on desperately to the rakish tip-top of her frolic "chapeau."

She swings an embarrassed arm and shifts to alternate feet, uneasily. The music brays out, and—the Yama Girl's husky, boy-like voice sings

Mary HAD—a li—tle LAMB—
She took it on—the "L,"
And when they GOT—up to the BRONX
That lamb was black—as HI-E—

The Yama Girl's mouth gathers, pursed, into an "O," and her eyes widen, and then a sheepish grin melts into her eyes and her shocked mouth puckers with hidden laughter.

And she swings on her heel and leaps away into a wild, fantastic, headlong dance—the dance of a crazy kinks clown, half girl, half wild boy, heady with the wine of the Spring air at twilight.

Oh-h-h-h,
Ya-a-ma, Ya-a-ma, Ya-a-ma man.

The black satin of her bloomers fills like sails, and they ripple and flatten against her body. Her hair flies in loose flux around her face, and her face is a vivid white candle flame in the yellow aureole of her hair. Her face flickers with changing moods.

Her feet might be bounding white balls carrying her body with them in their tireless, leaping flight. She circles madly around the boards, touching lightly and rebounding from the jutting points of the painted stack scenery impatiently, hurtedly, like an imprisoned moth, or an elf hunting for some lost thing and fearful of being caught.

She is wonderful. Your eyes follow her, painfully intent. All the Betty's around me sat like so many fluffy, pink-nosed pussy cats watching a moth flown in from the dark outside and beating against the ceiling.

I saw her two times, and the last time, too, I beat my hands till they hurt, along with the other folk who coaxed her back 16 times. And when she chucked her butterfly bow under her soft chin, and wailed another little joke, and wheeled again into her dance, and swung out through the wings with the candle flame of her face gone out for the last time—for a little minute I went back to see her.

Mr. Endsley piloted me through the gay little knots of chorus Bettyes motley with the color of bathing trunks, and sweaters, and bathing frocks, and the gray and scarlet of the giddy little Red Cross nurses, and the shimmer of pastel-tinted sheath gowns, and the Frenchy touch of startling black and white.

And after I had sat a minute on the back of a fat trunk, among towels and scissors and the froth and cloud of dancing dresses, and listened to her maid telling of the sweetness and childishness of the "Yama Girl, she whirled in—bree—long-legged—and the room filled with the quickness of her, the motioning of hands, and the swing of her black clown balloons, and the pad-pad of her feet, the whipping of her hair around her face, and her talk in a husky voice.

She's only 20—this Yama Yama Girl—and that's funny to me. For so many of the folks who have done things on the stage are lined of face, and not young any more, off it.

We sat on the trunk side by side, and swung our feet, and talked about dresses and careers. She sketches, and I begged to see some; but she spread her monstrous clown glove over her face, and looked at me between the fingers of it, and wouldn't "show."

She told me about her first picture, when she was very, very little. In a barrel, it was, when she first went on the stage. She let me feel the funny toe of her stubby little shoes; and then she told me she was very thin.

"Truly! That dress—the rose silk that Mrs. Josefa Osborne made—I can't get my two arms through the belt—Oh!"—and she laughed, and cuddled her knees—"Oh! I would do for the Thin Princess who had to stuff pillows around her to make her pretty."

"When I left she put her Mignon face through the crack of the door and whispered: "Did I talk too much?" And that was droll: for I had to lure her away from her chatter about other people, and into telling things about her ownself. You "Yama Girl!"

She made me think oddly of "Jane," in Rose Cecil O'Neil's gold and black tapestry of woven words, "The Loves of Edwy." Made me think of Jane as I dreamed her—a firefly thing, thin and young, litho of body and long of face and cheek bone to round, pointed chin; absurdly childish, with knees together and turned-in toes; full mouthed, with one eye jeeringly, delicately on the wink.

"The Three Twins" is one of the bulliest shows I have seen in New York. The little white-plastered "Yama Yamas" that dance in the moonlight, with their faces clown-spotted, wooden-shoed—their grotesque trousers held out at the hips with yard sticks—dance an eerie, rattling background for the leaping "Yama Girl."

The chorus is gay with pretty puster Bettys, and the brilliant colors of the frocks and gowns that turn through the changing scenes make the whole little show a dancing, singing harlequinade. Tomas Whiten is mighty clever. The red satan is in his feet. He is more of the artist and less of the little tough than so many of his satan-footed kind are! His Romeo dance under the balcony of his sweetheart, with its leaping after and catching of kisses with a very modern and Billiamy straw hat for a net, was a delicate, beautiful piece of work.

It's a gay little show, oh angel faces! I could go again and laugh just as hard, and beat holes in my gloves over the "Yama Girl."—Nell Brinkley, of the New York Evening Journal.

Editorial—"Three Twins" will be presented here with the original New York Herald Square Theatre production. For information regarding date and seat sale watch this paper.

Ruggles-Gale Graft Is Amazing To All

Columbus, O., March 24.—Most business of the attorney general's department is either investigating or prosecuting graft cases. General Denman is busy with the Beatty committee which is probing the crooked work of the Ruggles-Gale company with former state officials. Assistant Attorney General Milligan, helping Prosecutor Webber of Franklin county in the Mark case, and Assistant Attorney General Alburn is with the food probe. The attorney general will have charge of the prosecution of legislative lobbyists and givers if evidence can be obtained sufficient for conviction.

The revelations of the methods of the Ruggles-Gale company in its dealings with dishonest state officers and officials, as shown by the Beatty probe, are amazing. The company furnished state supplies and would pay officers through whom the sales would be sold commissions on the bills would be padded to cover the commission, the state paying the freight for this service. Sometimes the supplies were delivered and sometimes they were. The bills were also sent in and paid, though. It looks as if somebody will go to the penitentiary as a result of the disclosures of the Ruggles-Gale company transactions. Testimony was brought out indicating that George L. Ruggles, who was president of the company, had most to do with the grafting with the state officials.

MANY STYLES OF EQUITY'S

In the handsome new catalogue, just issued for the trade, the Portsmouth Stove and Range Co. show a remarkably large line of EQUITY Gas Ranges. There are all kinds of shapes, styles and sizes—the freak known as the "Elevated" oven. They drew the line on that because of the inconvenience and danger to the person using it. The oven is TOO HIGH FOR CONVENIENCE and the operator gets a fine "roast" reaching up to the broiler or baking oven when the top burners are in use. For this reason elevated ovens are not as safe or convenient as the old, low-down ovens—one kind is too high, the other too low—but the EQUITY Table Range is "JUST RIGHT." Try it.

BIG COAL MINE IS ABANDONED

Wellston, O., Mar. 24.—Wednesday, March 23, marked the abandonment of another mine, this time the Dayton Coal & Iron company's mine No. 2, familiarly known as the "Basket Mine."

This mine is located on the hill, north of the Wellston furnace, and if it had held out a little longer would have been ten years old in May. Wednesday afternoon the last coal to be taken from the mine was hoisted to the surface, and it will not be long until the machinery will all be removed.

The abandonment of this mine throws 40 men out of employment. Thus one by one are the mines in this section playing out.

Operator Is Blamed For Wreck On N. & W.

Bluefield, W. Va., Mar. 24.—The local heads of departments on the Norfolk & Western held a meeting yesterday in the superintendent's office for the purpose of investigating the freight wreck of last Sunday at Glen Alum. No official statement is given out but it is reported unofficially that Operator Epling, who it is claimed misspoiled a train order, will not serve in the capacity of operator any longer. The train crews on both trains and all operators who had anything to do with the orders of the trains were summoned as witnesses.

Sunday morning at Glen Alum, owing to lapped orders, two freight trains came together and two men were killed. Both men were firemen who were throwing coal in the fire boxes when the smash came.

Easter Services At Christian Church

In the First Christian church next Sunday, Easter, appropriate and beautiful and impressive and joyous exercises will be held. On last Easter the attendance in this Sunday school was 1008. This year it is hoped to go beyond this figure. Souvenirs will be given to all who attend. Also some new features and new literature will be adopted into the Junior department. Also throughout the whole school, the "Little Cross and Crown System" of merit recognition will be introduced. This is a beautiful and helpful scheme to promote regular attendance. At the regular hour, 7 o'clock, an attractive program of songs, drills, recitations, marches, etc., will be given. Much work is being put upon this program and it will certainly be highly pleasing. The choir will render valuable assistance. The entire offering of the day will be for the National Benevolent Association and will be given in support of the 17 institutions, hospitals, babies homes, homes for the aged, orphanages, etc., under the care of this association. This is a most beautiful ministry and it is hoped a creditable offering will be given.

Not Going Back Until Friday

It develops that Mrs. May Bradford did not return to Columbus Tuesday night but expects to go back Friday and it appears to be a mistake about her being at the infirmary.

She is stopping with a friend on Findlay street, and greatly deplores the notoriety she has gained through the trouble with her husband.

"I'm done with him," she said, and added that she was perfectly able to take care of herself and baby and expected to do so by taking employment in a tailor shop in the Capital City, where she worked before her marriage and made good money.

EVENING TIMES SPORTS

Huntington Dopester Is Mixed In His Dates

"Manager Cy Young, of the Huntington team of the Virginia Valley league, has landed another good pitcher in the person of Ed Moore, who was with Newark, Ohio, in the Ohio State league last season. Moore's record speaks for itself, for he worked in 25 games, won 10 and lost 13. Pretty good when you consider that he was with a tail-end team. He had four putouts and 56 assists without an error."

Back up, you Huntington Advertiser scribe. Your wonderful Mr. Moore referred to in the above paragraph did not pitch for Newark last year—not on your life. There was a Mr. Moore with Newark, but this particular fellow was "Peggy" Moore, and by the way he belongs to Portsmouth. "Peggy" won 10 and lost 13 games, but while he was splendid fielding pitcher, nevertheless it is common knowledge that he fell down on at least two chances at Millbrook park last season, one of his miscues costing him a 3 to 2 10-inning game. When "Peggy" Moore signs with any team in the Virginia league, it will be a cold day in hades. Why, man alive, he wants almost the salary limit of the entire Virginia Valley league to play in the Peerless City, and there is but little danger of any team in the Hot Air league coming across with enough of the coin of the realm to land "Peggy," "Big Frank," as he is sometimes called. However, the fans of Huntington may not know the difference—go dream on, brother; eat a little more rarebit.

DARE NOT.

"But the climate may disagree with your wife, Mr. Henpeck."
"Oh, doctor, it wouldn't dare!"

Baseball Salaries Are Mystery of Game

Wages in baseball may well tempt the average American citizen. There are grades of players just the same as ranks in other professions. A star diamond artist gets the flattering salary the same as the star banker, politician or insurance man. It is safe to say that wages have risen faster and higher in the baseball profession than any other on the face of the globe.

There is no more interesting study in the "Rise and Growth of Baseball" than this wage question, which is really a phase of economics which would make a hit in a college course. They may say that baseball is not a producer of world's goods, and that nothing material is gained which give the non-participants anything tangible. As a result, the ball player is ranked with the actor, the lecturer, the lawyer and the physician. Not a bad plane to occupy, by the way.

It is a fact that few men outside the magnates themselves know what actual salaries are paid. For instance, the general belief is that Tyrus Cobb, of the Detroit Tigers, receives a salary of $9000 a year, and that he has signed a contract for a term of three seasons. Is $9000 for seven months or so of actual work a good salary? Well, rather. Those grave, dignified men who occupy the United States senate and who have to live in grandeur are not any better off as regards coin of the realm in a salary way.

From all quarters comes the report that Hans Wagner, of the Pittsburg Pirates, gets in the neighborhood of $10,000 for the same amount of work. This would amount to $17,000 or more a year if he played that length of time. Few other skilled occupations pay this amount of money.

Frank Chance, the leader of the Chicago Cubs, gets around $10,000 a season, and so does Pitcher Christy Mathewson, of the New York Giants. In Mathewson's case his reward is greater than most of the others. For he receives this year pay for pitching in from 25 to 45 games a year.

Larry Lajoie, of Cleveland, always has been a big money maker since being with the Naps. His actual reward is shrouded in mystery, but it's a safe wager that it is not below $8000 annually, and perhaps much more. There are scores of men who get from $3000 to $4500 a season. This is far higher salaries than a vast majority of eminent ministers receive.

When baseball was young and Comiskey, Hudson, White, Anson, Williamson and Ewing were in their early twenties, salaries were not large as compared to those of today. Many stars were lucky to get $150 a month.

Each player in the world's championship games in 1885 between Anson's Colts and Comiskey's St. Louis Browns got about $41 for his "take-off" of the receipts. Just imagine Hans Wagner and Ty Cobb smiling at $41 each during the late series between the Tigers and the Pirates!

Ryan Is Simply After Revenge On Jeffries

According to the leading sporting men here, Tommy Ryan, once given newspaper credit for being champion of the world, one of the cleverest and certainly one of the most unpopular fighters who ever climbed through the ropes, will not gain in the esteem of the sporting world by training Johnson for his coming fight with Jeffries. Training Johnson naturally implies that he will be the negro champion's chief adviser in the ring at Emeryville July 4.

It isn't much that Ryan will second a black man against a white man in a championship battle. That would be passed up by the sports as one of Ryan's little vagaries. He has a good many of them. But it is so certain that Ryan has hooked up with Johnson merely to spite Jeffries that the sports won't relish his appearance in the negro's corner.

There is no doubt that Ryan is responsible for Jeffries winning the world's championship from Fitzsimmons and defending it against so clever a boxer as Corbett. Ryan went down to Atlantic, N. J., where Jeffries was training for his first fight with Bob Fitzsimmons, in 1899, and taught the giant Californian how to box. Ryan cut Jeffries to pieces giving them boxing lessons, but it was the only way to teach the big boilermaker how to fight.

Several years later Ryan and Jeffries had a serious falling out over money matters, and have been at swords' points ever since. From pouring out personal abuse in torrents they got so that they didn't speak as they passed by, and they have been bitter enemies ever since.

Ryan expressed a willingness several months ago to patch up the quarrel and as Jeff in his training but he was turned down cold.

Ryan is now out for revenge. It is a business proposition with him, and he doesn't care a hoot for the criticism. Ryan some weeks ago expressed the opinion that in a long fight Jeffries cannot stand the wear and tear, because of his long absence from the ring. It is likely that he will coach Johnson in tactics to prolong the battle. And when Jeffries sees Ryan in the negro's corner he will be doubly anxious to win in jig time.

LANGFORD IS NOW AFTER LIL ARTHA

Following the recent fight here in which Sam Langford defeated Jim Flynn in the eighth round, Flynn went immediately to the baths from the arena and is unable or unwilling to make any statement regarding the fight.

Langford said: "I was in better condition than for any fight in the last year and never was worried. I found that I could break through Flynn's guard and believe I gave him the worst beating any fighter has taken in many months. I am ready to take on any fighter in the world, except Jeffries. I will fight Johnson after he is through with Jeffries, win, lose or draw, and lick him $10,000 on the side."

Manager Woodman says that the Flynn fight bears out his statement made after the previous Langford-Flynn mill to the effect that Sam was lacking in condition that night, and that Langford did not train for it because he underestimated Flynn. Woodman has two custom fights for Langford between now and April 27, when Langford meets Kendall, but will not sign more than one fight for a few days.

Signs With The Diggers

Dayton, O., Mar. 24.—Erwin Ball, who plays center for the Turner basketball team, has signed a contract with the Marion club, of the Ohio State league, for the coming season.

Ball is considered one of the best amateur catchers in the city and a terrific hitter. He will join the club about April 15.

Chillicothe Fixing Grounds

Chillicothe, O., March 24.—Active work on the new State league diamonds at the Old Fair Grounds was begun yesterday. The local management hopes to have everything in shape in the course of a week or so.

Steeple Jack Warden, Portsmouth's king of climbers, left on Wednesday afternoon for Ironton where he has secured a contract for painting the smoke stacks of the Diamond Cement Co.

Joy For Johnson If He Trains At The Old Cliff House

Everything for Exercise From Boxing Sea Lions to a Toboggan Chute in the Baths.

By Joltum Bigmytt.

Last heard from "Jack" Johnson he was being hauled out of a snow bank into which he had blundered while driving his motor car from Mineapolis to Chicago. His wife was with him and both, through some breakage, were tumbled into a pile of snow. Fortunately the snow was soft and neither was hurt to any extent. After the accident Johnson had to "foot it" for about a mile to get to the nearest telephone, when he ordered another machine sent out from a nearby garage. Later he and his wife pulled up at a village hostelry for the night.

Johnson seems to have about as many automobile accidents as any ten men. If he does not have the machine stolen from him he generally finishes up the day with a bump of some sort or a broken axle. It was a week or so ago that some joy riders borrowed his machine, while it was standing in front of the theatre, and it was found in a tree about five miles out the next night. It has been predicted more times than once that if Johnson is knocked out at any time it will be by the automobile. He is a reckless driver and it is possible that for that reason Corse Payton made his wager last week that the fight with Jeffries would not take place according to schedule.

The news comes from San Francisco that Johnson has engaged quarters at the old Cliff House for his training camp and will begin steady work about the middle of May. Of course this may only be a press notice that the Cliff House is still standing. It had a severe rocking during the earthquake vibrations. It is a good place at which to gather health and strength, there being everything to aid the man who is looking for condition.

Johnson can either climb the mountains, swim in the Pacific, which, by the way, takes a lot of swimming at that point, the breakers often reaching ten feet in height; he can take to the beach for strengthening the leg muscles, he can swim out to the seal rocks and have a set-to with a couple of the sea lions, or, for gymnasium exercise, he can step across to the Sutro Baths and do some trapeze work, and if he falls he will drop into the swimming pool; consequently there is no chance of his breaking a leg or his neck.

For the development of back muscles and kidneys he will be able to try the toboggan slide in connection with the Sutro Bath. There he can don a swimming suit and slide from the top of the building at an angle of about forty-five degrees, and when near the end he will be thrown into a sort of loop the loop concern that will compel him to turn a couple of flip flaps before he drops into the water. It is great exercise for the muscles of the back, and it is claimed put an armor plate over the kidneys.

The Cliff House is a good place to train, except for the cold and chilly nights, and the fog comes in from the Pacific at intervals. This is so thick that at times the waiters in the restaurants have to carry searchlights with them to find the persons who ordered the crawfish. At that it is not a bad idea of Johnson's to train at the Cliff House, for he will be thoroughly acclimated, and if the Fourth of July should be foggy and damp he would be better able to stand it than Jeffries after the latter has trained in the beautiful climate of Santa Cruz.

BILLY YARNELL HEARS OF A STAR

William Yarnell, of Maysville, Ky., who pitched four seasons for Mansfield, when the Reformatory City was in the O. P. and Ohio State leagues, and who was compelled to quit on account of an injured arm, has helped to dig up a phenom for the Portsmouth team. The name of the coming Ty Cobb is M. M. Bower, of Georgetown, who stands six feet in his stocking feet, weighs 180 pounds, 20 years of age, and with the speed of a deer. He is an outfielder, throws right handed but hits from the off side of the plate. He played with a team in the Blue Grass league last season, but refused to sign a contract and at the close of the race became a free agent. He has been recommended to Mr. Yarnell by Dale Smith, of Georgetown, who has tipped off more players than any one person in Ohio. Mr. Bower will be tendered a contract by the local club as he is a sensible fellow and willing to sign at a moderate salary.

Mr. Yarnell, who is now working in this city, has a pitcher under a local contract. He says he is the greatest finger he ever saw in the bushes, and is willing to let his pitcher that he would prove the star in the Ohio State league.

FRED TENNEY TO BECOME REPORTER

New York, March 24.—It is rumored that Fred Tenney, the Giants' veteran first baseman, will soon retire from the game to become a baseball reporter. In that event Merkle will be the regular initial sacker.

Wolgast to Give Nelson a Chance

St. Louis, March 24.—It is practically certain today that Ad Wolfast and Battling Nelson will meet in the ring again next September. The agreement for a return match was made after an exchange of telegrams between Tom Jones, Wolgast's manager, and Nelson. Jones declared that the public was not yet satisfied that Wolgast is Nelson's master, and he believed that another meeting would draw a $50,000 house.

Emery P. Bickey took out a building permit Wednesday for a two-story six-room house on East Eighth street.

Columbus Will Have 2 Farms This Season

Akron, O., Mar. 24.—The Columbus team will have two farms this season, the best of the bunch will be kept in Columbus. The next best will be sent to Akron and what is left will be sent to Lima. Bobby Quinn, who has the Akron franchise, will undoubtedly see that Akron has a good team and from what is known of Quinn the public can rest easy on this score.

Quinn is no quitter and when he makes up his mind to do a thing he usually succeeds. He has assured the fans that he will have a strong team here and his one aim will be to land Akron in first place. The Lima club is on the market for sale and possibly before the season has advanced very far it will be sold. A good deal of money was lost there the last two seasons and the owners are anxious to get rid of it.

'Tigers' Sign New Player

Mansfield, O., Mar. 24.—The thirty-eighth player who has been ordered to report by the management of the Mansfield club has been signed and will report with the rest of the bunch on April 13.

An outfielder is the latest addition and he responds to the handle of B. A. Langenhan. He comes from Cleveland and is very highly recommended by Nate Cook, who has seen him play in various leagues in Cleveland. He was with the Salem independent club for a time last season and finished the season with one of the clubs of the Southern Michigan league. He says in his letter to the management that he will make good.

There is some question whether Mansfield fans will have the opportunity of seeing either the Pittsburg National or Cleveland American league clubs perform on the local lot during the season. It seems that both these clubs have agreed not to play exhibition games during the regular playing season. The Mansfield management will endeavor to secure a number of other big league clubs during the regular playing season, however.

President Paul Sturges, of the Mansfield club, has received a letter from Heffner, the old Zanesville goal tender, asking for a tryout as a catcher, but he will not be signed as the local management believes it has enough material in that department. Heffner has been playing polo in the cast.

How Larry Feeds The Sport Writers

Wonder when that Larry McLean stuff is going to filter itself. Long Larry, his suspension and reinstatement has been about the only news from the Reds' stamping grounds at Hot Springs for the past several days, and to the fans of this man's city the dope has become quite nauseating. If as much fuss was created whenever any other Redleg took a drink of joy water as arises when Larry loses his balance, then it would be necessary for the press in Cincinnati to run extra editions.

Why so much noise is made when McLean is guilty of some breech in the training rules is hard to fathom. No sooner does he blow a bubble than it goes jingling over the wires. 1000 words per minute.

All this jingo about Griff being fully determined to hold McLean with a double jointed lock is received with several grains of salt by the knowing fans. McLean has been on several red painting jobs since the "Old Fox" took the managerial reins in his lilly white hands. And he is still a member in good standing. He just can't help it—poor fellow that he is and it is about time that the team was getting rid of his services. But judging from the past the sport writers of the Queen City would then be deprived of one of their greatest assets—so Griff will possibly hold on to him for their especial benefit. Between Larry's fines and his "vacation trips" they have been living fat for some time.

Virginia League Holds A Meeting

Huntington, W. Va., Mar. 24.—An important meeting of the Virginia Valley baseball promoters was held at Ashland last night. Cy Young and President John Spinney were both there, Spinney returning to Cincinnati this morning. All matters pertaining to the league were taken up and disposed of except the salary limit and schedule. These will be taken up at a meeting to be held in Charleston March 27, and this will probably be the last meeting of the league stockholders till the season opens.

The season will open May 5, according to announcements, at Huntington with the Ashland Catlettsburg team as their opponents.

Manager Young has at present 18 men under contract, but does not want to give in their names before the first of next week. However, he gave the following names of men who were among the first to sign: Harry Mills, outfielder, from Mt. Hope, Va.; Jerry Hoffer, pitcher, from Ronceverte; Myers and Kaiser, of Cincinnati, pitchers; and Lloyd Cooper, catcher, who served several seasons ago with Roanoke in the Virginia State league.

The league is to be a six-circuit affair with the following towns represented: Ashland - Catlettsburg, Huntington, Charleston, Montgomery, Parkersburg, Gallipolis-Point Pleasant.

Manager Young declares that he will present the pennant winners in the "Twilight League," which is to be composed of the different lodges in Huntington, with a silver cup.

This ought to be an incentive to the "Knights" to get out and get busy and secure the coveted trophy.

TELEPHONE MEN HAVE A MEETING

Columbus, O., March 24.—Frank L. Beam of Mt. Vernon, who has been president of the Ohio Independent Telephone Association since its organization, will continue at the head of the association, having been again elected president at a meeting of the new board of directors held at the Chittenden Hotel Wednesday.

The board, which under the new plan of organization of the association is composed of S. E. WardWard of Mansfield, D. J. Cable of Lima, H. P. Folsom of Circleville, C. Y. McVey of Cleveland, J. A. Ainsworth of Dayton, G. R. Johnston of Columbus, G. P. Thorp of Wilmington, W. R. Fee of Portsmouth, W. F. Laubach of Akron, W. D. Rush of Greenville, Frank L. Beam of Mt Vernon, C. L. Jones of Athens, W. H. Hyde of Warren, Stacey B. Rankin of South Charleston, A. A. Whitney of Mt. Gilead and H. L. Beatty of Bucyrus, met with S. E. Ward as chairman and G. R. Johnson as secretary.

Frank L. Beam was elected president of the association, H. P. Folsom was elected secretary and Ralph R. Reamer of Columbus, treasurer, a place which M. Reamer has filled for several years. The executive committee, which under the new method of organization will have much to do with the affairs of the association, is composed of the president, S. E. Ward, W. D. Rush, H. P. Folsom, D. J. Cable and C. Y. McVey. The board took up a number of other matters in addition to the election o fthe officers and the question of the schedule of long-distance rates was discussed and a committee will be appointed to take up this question with President Davis of the United States Telephone Company, as suggested by him at the annual convention.

The meeting of the board was most harmonious and showed that the independent telephone men of the state are now closer together than they have been for several years. Several questions which have been agitating them were satisfactorily settled at the convention and from this time the independents say that they are going to have full confidence in each other and work for the common interests of the independent telephone companies of the state.

MURDER CASES MAY GO OVER

Greenup, Ky., Mar. 24.—The growing interest in the Will Culbertson murder case was evidenced by the immense crowd that gathered within the court house Thursday afternoon.

The cases of Fred Ferguson and Mrs. Sarah Hill-Higgins, both of whom were indicted for the alleged crime, were called at 1 o'clock. The commonwealth seemed not quite ready to go ahead with the arrangements and were given until Friday morning at 8:30 to decide whether or not to go to trial.

The commonwealth's attorneys played for time on account of the absence of an important witness, a young son of George Nixon, of Mill street, Portsmouth, and an officer was dispatched to Portsmouth at once after him. The boy is supposed to know of some threats made against Culbertson. Mrs. Sarah Sheets, another important witness, was also missing, but will be brought to Greenup from Ironton tonight.

There is a rule in Kentucky whereby requests of either side for a continuance until the next term of court is always granted, but it was generally believed at Greenup Thursday that the cases will go to trial. Attorneys meanwhile are busy putting finishing touches to their preliminary work ready to wage the big battle that will begin Friday.

Columbus Has A Dog Catcher

Columbus, O., Mar. 24.—Tagless dogs are doomed. A real dog-catcher is on the job today and his position is to be made a permanent one, so there will be no rest for the canine without a home.

W. P. England, of 751 West Chapel street, was appointed "canine officer" by Mayor Marshall yesterday. He said he was ready for work and was told to get busy today.

Considerable trouble was experienced in securing the right man for the place. Those among the colored race who were suitable found that dog-catching was not compatible with their religion or some other equally important element. England will be paid $50 a month and be allowed $1 a day for the use of his horse. He is given special police power.

Removing Sarah Jane

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"No, it wouldn't do—it wouldn't do 'tall. Sarah Jane don't like her, and she'd just raise old Cain about it. I'm old enough to know what I want and to run my own business, but Sarah Jane has got ways with her. She might even put poison in my tea if she thought I was going to do it."

It was Deacon Meeks, owner of the sawmill in the village of Plainfield, and a widower of three years' standing, who was thus soliloquizing one afternoon as he sat on a sawlog outside the mill. The deacon was 55 years old, and his sister Sarah Jane had kept house for him since he was left alone.

Sarah Jane Meeks was almost forty. She was tall and gaunt. She had yellow hair. She was cross-eyed and had prominent teeth, and she had never loved. The town feared her tongue, and men turned the corner when they saw her coming. But Sarah bossed her brother to an extent. He had to obey. She didn't care whether he went to a circus or to prayer meeting, and she had nothing to say about his politics or the way he ran his sawmill, but there was one thing she wouldn't stand for—his getting married again. She had a good job, and she didn't propose to be ousted by a second wife.

It was the widow Johnson whom the deacon had in mind when he soliloquized. He was in love with her and felt that his affections were returned. She was nearly his age and a much respected woman. Sarah Jane heard of the liking they had for each other, and she took both principals to task about it. She could outtalk the widow and nutshout her brother, and so she nipped things in the bud. In the language of the deacon when he went over to see the widow:

"I DON'T FEEL FINANCIALLY ABLE TO SUPPORT A WIFE."

"Widder Johnson, I'm a-saying that I've taken a great shine to you, and I don't care who knows it; but you see how I'm situated with Sarah Jane. If she was removed I'd have something to say to you mighty quick, but as it is we've got to hang on and wait."

The widow didn't say much that was consoling in reply, and the deacon went away hating himself for his lack of moral courage. One day he would make up his mind to marry and give Sarah Jane the bounce, and the next he would shiver at the way the dishes would be broken and the furniture destroyed. He was a good man, but he found himself wondering why his sister didn't get pneumonia or slip on the doorstep and break her neck. Once the thought of choking her to death and carrying her body away in a bag entered his mind, but he sternly dismissed it. He did, however, scatter rusty nails and broken glass in the back yard. Sarah Jane was a great hand to go barefoot, and a piece of glass or a nail in her foot might be harmful. She continued to stroll about as usual, and nothing happened.

As the weeks went by a stranger came to Plainfield selling a magic liniment. It cured everything while you waited. He was a bald-headed, hump-backed man, and he seemed lonely and with little to live for. He had had sorrows, as he confided to Deacon Meeks after vainly trying to sell him a bottle of the magic. He had been thrown down hard, and he never expected to love again.

Besides selling magic liniment this man could sing. This was the deacon's cue. Sarah Jane loved a singer. She just doted on a man who could carry through the song of "The Old Oaken Bucket" without more than three or four breaks. He was invited to the house to supper, and he sang for Sarah Jane. She was captivated and laid herself out to be agreeable. That evening the deacon walked a distance with the singer and finally asked:

"Would you marry again if you found the right kind of a woman?"

"I don't feel financially able to support a wife," was the reply.

"But if it so happened that you were to fall in love with my dear sister, on the one hand I should hate to lose her, and on the other I should feel it my duty to present you with—well, say a couple of hundred dollars. That is, if you were going to take her off to California at once."

"Thanks, but I couldn't do it. I am selling magic liniment, but am not in the side-show business."

"I might say three hundred."

"I would be useless. I don't want to hurt your feelings, but the place for Sarah Jane is in a dime museum."

The deacon had been turned down, but a new idea had lodged in his cranium. The way to get rid of his sister was to marry her off. He felt resentful toward the liniment man for not accepting his offer. Such a man as that had no right to pick and choose. No matter about Sarah Jane's locks, three hundred dollars was a big offset.

The stranger was to have left the next day—but he didn't. He planned to sleep in a barn the second night and save expense. Three tramps shared the haymow with him, and at daylight a constable made a raid and captured the quartet. They were brought to the village, and the deacon saw that his chance had come. He interviewed the liniment man.

"I've got to believe what my eyes see," he said, "but I'm thunderstruck. Think of my having nourished a viper in the bosom of my family."

"But I'm no tramp," protested the man.

"Yes, sir, nourished a viper, and I don't know what Sarah Jane'll say. She won't believe me at first. Why, she took to you at once, and here you've turned out to be an unmitigated villain!"

"But I tell you I'm selling a magic liniment, good for man and beast. I knew nothing of the three tramps."

"Yes sir, a viper and an unmitigated villain! No wonder you didn't want to marry my sister. You felt that she was too innocent. You figured that if you stole a horse she would tell on you. I thought so last night, when I offered you a hundred dollars to start business on."

"You offered three hundred and I wouldn't take it because—"

"I offered $90, and you refused it because you wanted to continue on in your villainous ways. Poor Sarah Jane! Your slugging brought tears to her eyes. She would have said yes if you had asked her to marry you, and think how she would have been deceived. A viper, sir—a viper!"

"But you'll testify for me that I am no tramp?" appealed the man.

"What! A viper ask me to say that he is not a viper! If you were my brother-in-law—"

"But I'm willing to be. I don't propose to be sent to jail with these tramps. If your sister is willing to marry me, and you'll come down with $300 it's a go."

"You mean the $90. I might possibly make it a hundred, but can you convince Sarah Jane that you are not an unhung rascal? Can you satisfy her that she is giving her love to a worthy man?"

"Of course I can. I've got hundreds of testimonials in regard to magic liniment. Make it a hundred and fifty and I'll head for Nebraska."

"And marry Sarah Jane to-morrow?"

"Yes, to-day. Tell the squire that it's all a mistake and get me out of this."

It was very little trouble to secure the man's freedom. In fact, it was known that a mistake had been made, and he was to be turned loose, anyway. He accompanied the deacon home and sang some more for Sarah. Then they were left alone to talk. That night the justice was called in to perform a marriage ceremony, and two days later the deacon walked into the widow Johnson's house to say:

"Widder, Providence has did it!"

"Who—what?"

"Sarah Jane has been removed to Nebraskian pastures of usefulness, and now if your affections are the same as my affections, let's get married before she has time to walk back here!"

Very Much Out of Place.

A citizen of a New York village died the other day and the funeral in his home was a large affair. The minister arrived late and finding the room crowded seated himself in a rocking chair thrust in an inconspicuous corner to compose his mind for a moment.

Suddenly the strains of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," filled the hushed room with clamor. The minister looked shocked, but the tune banged on. A member of the family rushed over to the corner where the minister was seated and said in a horrified whisper:

"For heaven's sake, man, get up! You're sitting in the musical chair."

He had chosen an old fashioned musical chair that played its one tune when any one sat in it and which the family supposed had been put in an out of the way place.

The Singing Kettle.

It is said that the Japanese, so ingenious in the making of curios and fascinating devices of every kind, manufacture them. An iron tea kettle, otherwise quite ordinary, has the almost lifelike characteristic of bursting into song when the water boils. The sounds, they say, are produced by steam bubbles escaping from sheets of iron fastened across the kettle near the bottom. Skill is required, not only in making them, but in regulating the fire under them. These curious kettles have been in use for many, many years.

Disappearance of the Dinosaur.

An unsolved problem in geological history is the disappearance of the gigantic dinosaurs, which may be said to have ruled the animal world in the cretaceous period. They are known to have lived in nearly all lands until the close of that period, says Dr. A. S. Woodward, and there is no reason to believe that they suffered from a struggle with any warm-blooded competitors. They seem to have died a natural death.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Parsnips improve by freezing.

More fowls die from bad air than from cold weather.

Even in the winter you can keep the farm looking neat.

The corn grader helps the crop by culling out the weak kernels.

The manure shed is one of the most valuable buildings on the farm.

Milk is a great poultry feed. That's why the dairy hen is such a profitable one.

When fattening fowls in confinement see that they have plenty of gravel.

Examine your trees from the nursery this coming spring and see that they are free from crown gall.

It is of importance that the brood sow be kept in a vigorous, thrifty condition, not too fat but full of vitality.

It is said there is only enough broom-corn to furnish one broom to each housewife in America this year.

The method of feeding and kind and quality of the food determines the flavor and nutritive value of the eggs.

The Chilean government has several engineering corps in the field studying different methods and systems of irrigation.

By skillful pruning peach trees may be forced to spread out and to have a succession of bearing wood from close to the ground up.

The cow's udder should be well washed and dried with a coarse cloth before milking, and the milker's hands should be washed after every cow.

Turkeys are much more cleanly in their habits than chickens and their surroundings should always be kept free from decayed food or filth of any kind.

It is admitted that growing pigs placed on rape at about 25 to the acre will for two or three months require only half as much grain as sty-fed animals.

Butter made from pasteurized sweet cream has better keeping qualities and remains free from objectionable flavors a longer time than butter made from sour cream.

Young trees may require staking if planted in windy, exposed places; but see that the ties cannot chafe the trunks. Bands of cloth or leather can be arranged to prevent this.

One thing in connection with horse breeding which cannot be too strongly insisted upon is that if it is worth while to breed at all it is worth while to feed the young ones liberally.

One reason why so many beginners fail in the sheep business is that they have been led to believe that sheep can be kept with little trouble or care and that profits nevertheless are sure to accrue.

A good time now to haul out some manure on to that raspberry patch. It makes a good mulch for winter and early spring. Later keeps down the early weeds and above all adds fertility to the soil.

To the farmer who is willing to use a little pains and gumption there is good money in sheep. It is not necessarily easy money, but very satisfactory returns may be obtained with proper management.

Most folks believe that onions are not injured by freezing, but nevertheless severe freezing will surely spoil them. Light freezing won't hurt them if they are thawed out gradually and not handled while frozen.

The Canada thistle is a greater pest in some sections than in others, for the reason that it is better adapted to some soils and climates than to others. In the latitude of Illinois it is reasonably easy to control and is never a serious pest.

City poultrymen find it pays to buy bones at the meat market in order to feed their hens green cut bone. But the farmers usually slaughter enough meat in winter to make the purchase of bones unnecessary. A good bone cutter will chop up bones, gristles and waste parts of an animal and be clear gain.

Buy meat bones for the hens.

White grape is the best of white currants.

Concrete beehives form the subject of a recent patent.

A sheep in the pasture field is good scavenger of weeds and briars.

The man; the cow; the feed; are three essentials to successful dairying.

Too much exposure and too much confinement are alike injurious to the colts.

To keep off lice sprinkle the nests of sitting turkeys each week with snuff.

Some sloppy food is responsible for a great deal of mortality among small chicks.

Except during the breeding season, keep males away from the flock, hens lay better if left alone.

The amount of feed required to produce a pound of gain increases as the chicks approach maturity.

The farmer who has not time to fuss with a young colt would better go into some other business.

The tobacco acreage in the United States for 1909 was 1,150,000 as against 875,000 acres in 1908.

The little red chicken mite and erstwhile the louse thrive these days. Whitewash and kerosene for them!

Raising young squabs to supply the city markets is always profitable if they are given careful management.

Every owner of a dairy must figure on receiving more in the milk pail than he puts into the feed trough.

An experiment by an Ohio company of curing tobacco by heat from natural gas stoves has proved successful.

Provide a shelter for pigs running on winter pasture. It need not be expensive, but one that is well ventilated.

To make fall pigs do well they must be provided with warm sleeping quarters at night and filled with sunshine during the day.

It is an advantage to raise turkeys, not only for swelling your bank account, but also for the many injurious insects they destroy.

When the old turkey hens are set take the same method with them as with the hen mother and brood, and take care to provide a large coop.

Do not pick out the poorest soil you have for the orchard. The best is none too good. A slope to the south makes a good location for most fruits.

See that the poultry houses are properly ventilated at night. To compel fowls to roost in a close, filthy place is a good way to have unhealthy stock.

In the last fiscal year experts of the department of agriculture inspected before slaughtering 63,544,265 animals at 876 establishments in 240 cities and towns.

Never wait until milk becomes coagulated before skimming and when adding a fresh skimming to the cream already collected stir well, so all may ripen evenly.

In purchasing new male birds, secure those that have something back of them to the line of good ancestors. The males are worth considering, for they are half the flock.

Feed fall pigs during winter a moderate ration of corn and supplement with bran, shorts and such other nitrogenous feeds as you have on hand to give variety to the ration.

The use of automobiles for delivering milk from the farm to the shipping station saves much valuable time and has been the means of widening the territory where milk can be profitably raised.

If you have hens with little chicks do not put the coops near the ones where there are little turkeys, as a hen with chicks will kill little turkeys. A hen with turkeys will likewise kill the chickens.

Experiments made by the department of agriculture at Washington have demonstrated that crown gall is caused by a bacterial parasite and that it will affect a large number of plants where infected.

Flockmasters all over the country will complain in February and March about their ewes disowning lambs, lambs coming dead or weak and ewes having no milk. These conditions are caused by innutritious, dry and constipating feeds and lack of water.

When one is growing baby beef, there are good reasons for forcing the feeding. With that class of animals forcing is necessary, but it is not necessary with animals that are to stand at the head of herds. Development more than normally quick will be of no advantage to them. With them that style of development should be followed that will result in fullest and most vigorous growth when matured.

RETURN DATE OF THE THREE TWINS, WED. MARCH 30TH

"Three Twins," which comes to the Grand for a return date Wednesday, March 30, is positively one of the best musical comedies that has ever been produced. It ran in Chicago for five months at the Whitney opera house, and for 10 months at the Herald Square theater in New York.

"Three Twins" is a musical comedy with a plot and many novel features, the conglomerate nonsense, the riot of color, and the spirited movements make such an agreeable attack on one's senses that it matters not under what name the revelry goes. The music titillates and tantalizes, and the witty lines and adept clowning excites one to laughter. Mr. Joseph M. Gaites has so lavishly costumed the beautiful show girls that they are pleasing to the eye. In the second act there are eight of the handsomest Parisian directoire gowns worn by beautiful and shapely girls. The electrical effects are marvelous, the faceograph being a distinct novelty, the electrical aerial swing being an amazon structure of steel, being illuminated with over 2000 electric lights revolving at a rapid rate with six girls in the baskets singing "The Cuddle Song," is said to be one of teh most beautiful finales ever staged.

Swindlers Are Held

Olive Hill, Ky., Mar. 24.—Five men were held by the federal grand jury after an examination here in connection with swindling wholesale houses in all parts of the country through the medium of the "Bank of Orr," an institution which, it is said, does not exist.

The defendants, who are charged with using the mails to defraud, are David Prince, Marion Sparks, Richard Sparks, Joshua Perkins and George Whitt.

Prince is accused of having established the "bank" as a reference for wholesalers to inquire about others of the defendants. The men are said to have established wide credit and obtained about $40,000 worth of goods.

Neekamp's Guilty

Ironton, O., Mar. 24.—The jury in the case of Theodore Neekamp, charged with cutting Robert McKinley with intent to kill, returned a verdict Wednesday evening on the third count in the indictment, stabbing with intent to wound, the penalty of which is from one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

In rendering his charge the court instructed the jury that from the defendant's own statement, a verdict of at least assault and battery should be returned.

Notice of a motion of a new trial was promptly given.

Hawkins Bill Is To Become Law

Columbus, O., Mar. 24.—Through agreement with a majority of the senate committee on elections Dr. James O. Hawkins, of Jackson county, has been able to secure for his bill to nominate members of congress by a direct vote, a favorable recommendation. It will be reported to the senate next Tuesday morning, and will be placed upon the calendar for final action in a preferred position. This bill has already passed the house, the vote being most decisive. The opposition which has been shown to it has been of a weak and scattering character, and Dr. Hawkins feels that he will be able to announce its enactment into law before the end of the coming week. Yesterday he appeared before the committee and made an argument for speedy action in order that the several district committees would not issue calls for conventions, which this bill will render unnecessary hereafter.
